2021 Wellborn Ecology Fund Grants

Barnard Academy was awarded $5,000 to construct a sugar house on school grounds as the launch of a place-based ecology learning project.

Child Care Center in Norwich, Inc. was awarded $5,000 to support RealFood4Kids, a Center-wide initiative comprised of farm-to-school cooking & gardening programs.

Dothan Brook School was awarded $5,000 to expand use of the K-2 outdoor classroom program by aligning English language arts curriculum with established place-based ecology education models.

Governor’s Institutes of Vermont was awarded $2,200 to support scholarships for Upper Valley students to participate in the Environmental Science Immersion Program.

Newton Elementary School was awarded $4,998 to support a multi-faceted approach to enhance place-based ecology education efforts for K-6 students.

Ottauquechee Natural Resources Conservation District was awarded $3,925 to support the Scientific Maps Go to School Project.

Randolph Elementary School was awarded $5,000 to expand and enhance place-based ecology education efforts with a robust outdoor classroom program.

SAU #43-Newport School District was awarded $5,000 to support the development and initial implementation of a district-wide Place-Based Ecology Education plan.

SAU #6-Claremont/Cornish/Unity School District was awarded $10,500 to launch a year-long, experiential teacher professional development track focused on nature-based learning and effective use of outdoor classrooms.

The Fells was awarded $5,000 to support development of an Educational Advisory Council, and to support place-based ecology education programs for Upper Valley youth.
Trustees of Dartmouth College was awarded $8,800 to support the Citizen Science/Dragonfly Mercury Project within 5 Upper Valley high schools over 2 years.

Vermont Center for Ecostudies was awarded $4,882 to support implementation of place-based ecology courses with UV students through creative experimental design and community science.

White River Partnership was awarded $5,000 to engage Upper Valley schools in classroom and field work activities that create opportunities for place-based ecology education in the White River watershed.

Windsor Southeast Supervisory Union was awarded $3,000 to enhance outdoor classrooms by connecting literacy and outdoor curriculum in order to promote environmental learning.